BACKGROUND INFO:

Born to lower middle class parents, no siblings. Was a generally bright kid growing up, and showed an increased aptitude for biology. It was a surprising move when he joined the army and maneuvered his way to becoming a combat medic.

His codename is the nickname he gained during the first live mission he participated in. His squad was hit by an RPG, and one of his squadmates was grievously injured. He managed to keep the soldier alive long enough to reach medical facilities by using experimental surgical methods that, while most likely saved his life, made him scarred for life.

His competence as a soldier and expertise in combat medicine marked him as a valuable asset to the Agency.
