BACKGROUND INFO:

Olivia was recruited in her senior year of college to be a part of a pilot program run through the DIA under the patronage of Major Marcus Williams. At the time, it was part of an attempt to improve the military's HUMINT efforts. Olivia's training was largely successful, but as she continued in the program, in fact excelled at it, she became less convinced of her desire to be part of a military program that didn't always coincide with her own ideological beliefs.

Ultimately, she abandoned the program shortly before graduation, arranged for her family to believe that she had died in a car accident while she was in grad school, and then used her available means to surgically alter her appearance. She then took her skills and entered the freelance marketplace.
