BACKGROUND INFO:

Grew up in Minnesota all his life with his parents. Was known to get into trouble at an early age consisting of minor misdemeanors involving a wide range of acts of mischief, some involving the misuse of fireworks and homemade chemical accelerants. Later went to college at the University of Minnesota where he obtained a bachelors degree in chemistry and a minor in structural engineering. Worked for several years at Allied Technologies in the ammunition and explosives research and development department, where he excelled in the field of explosive energy distribution patterns of mines, grenades and RAW materials. Was a part of a small collaborative research group in England, who were testing a new lightweight copper enclosed explosive round known as the Krakatoa. Was offered a position within the Agency, where his vast knowledge of explosives would be utilized, along with the requirement to complete an extensive training in the field of stealth tactics. Has accepted all terms and has been granted the opportunity to utilize the Agency armory and research department labs for further explosives developments.
