BACKGROUND INFO:

Grew up in Moscow all his life and was raised by his father and mother. Mother unemployed and father served in the Russian military for almost thirty years. Went to public school and later joined the Russian military where he served four years, in which he excelled in long-range tactical assault and counterintelligence operations. Was offered a position in the Russian KGB where he accepted and served two years under Ivan Karishnikov. Defected to the United States after uncovering possible ties to the unfortunate deaths of his parents and his very own KGB. Swore he would find out who was behind the assumed accidental fire at his families apartment that killed his parents. Was picked up by United States government officials who tried to assimilate him into their Special Ops unit command. After six months he was released due to post-traumatic psychological terror episodes mostly attributed to the potential assassination of his parents. Was incarcerated in the Chicago state prison for five 3rd degree felonies involving the potential sale and trafficking of massive amounts of firearms and ammunition between state lines. The Agency intervened on his behalf after two months of his sentence, in which a technicality was somehow overlooked in his case, and was released with all charges dropped. After his release, he agreed to join the Agency the next day. He has conveyed many undiscovered secrets and tactics of the KGB and of Russian military life, in return for future use of Agency resources in solving his parent's death. Is an excellent marksman and possesses a very strong will. Is not very fond of any foreign or American-made weaponry except for those made from Russian hands and/ or Russian craftsman. Not very fluent in English, but is very diverse in all sorts of European and Asian cultures.
