

CODENAME: Lockesmith

REPORT SECURITY CLEARANCE LEVEL: Beta

LAST NAME: Laidow FIRST NAME: Jeram

DECEASED: No DATE:

GENDER: Male ALIAS:

RACE: African American ALIAS:

DOB: 7/1/1978 ALIAS:

ALLEGIANCE: The Agency

NAT ORIGIN: United States WEIGHT: 153 HAIR: Black/Brown

AGE: 31 EYES: Brown MARITAL STAT: Single

HEIGHT: 6'1" EDUCATION: Unknown

PRIMARY ADDRESS: SECONDARY ADDRESS:

New York NY

ASSIGNED MISSIONS: Legacy Hunt

BACKGROUND INFO:

Jeram grew up stealing, petty theft, cars whatever he could. He had a bit of a talent for it – however it ended when his father found out. Jeram’s father was a poster-boy for black rights, and finding out his son was the stereotype he’d railed against he was put in a bad position, after several failed attempts at fixing things on his own he gave his son an ultimatum – which Jeram promptly took and joined up with the military.

Against all expectations on both Jeram and his father’s part the military straightened him up, and his time in his youth spent stealing cards actually transferred pretty well to driving military trucks and patching the things up when they did go wrong.

After suffering an injury in Iraq he was transferred to light duty where the Agency picked him off. Jeram’s barely spoken to his father since joining and has no desire to do so, as far as Jeram’s concerned all ties are severed. It’s better for a soldier (or agent) to be unattached anyway.

Jeram has a loft apartment in New York City, though he spends little time there, spending much of his time on the road or otherwise tripping.

Outwardly Jeram is easy going and laid-back - though he’s quick to snap back to alertness when required.