BACKGROUND INFO:

A professor of Medieval History at prestigious William & Mary, Archimedes Flynn gained a reputation as a discoverer of lost medieval treasures. Having traveled the world, his skills and abilities were recognized as being a possible asset to the Agency. After an initial rejection of the Agency's offer to become a member, Flynn had a change of heart after agents saved him from an assassination attempt.

Though he has not participated in any actual missions as of yet, it is hoped his fame and notoriety will allow him public access to events that other agents may have difficulty getting into.
