BACKGROUND INFO:

Growing up in the expansive outback of Southern Australia left room for this rebel rouser to find her own entertainment. Always running off with her father's rifle to hunt the abundant creatures in the area and staying out all hours, eventually getting escorted home by the local police. Her parents couldn't handle her anymore and, at 17, decided to send her off to the highly regarded Army Recruit Training Center in Wagga Wagga, New South Wales hoping to instill some discipline. After initial fits and grumbling, and "special" treatment for her attitude, she grew to love military life for its structure and twisted forms of punishment. All those years with her father's weapon gave her an advantage on the range and she excelled, not for the sake of her country, but to become a better, more efficient hunter. Looking back, she can't recall how she became one of the more sought after assassins, but the Agency took notice of her and her skills. Eventually she gave in to their requests to come and be a part of their elite team of agents, if only out of curiosity.
