BACKGROUND INFO:

Grew up in Virginia all his life where he excelled as a child prodigy, advancing and surpassing most of his classmates in all academics. Was abused as a child by his father for not being physical enough and coddled by his mother out of fear of injury. Later participated in many sports where he developed an athletic leadership role along with a body to match. Attended the University of Virginia where he received a Masters degree in IFID or International Financial Infrastructures and Design. Has worked for several security financiers companies as a predominant leader on designing ways of securing millions of dollars of federal, state and private assets from company embezzlement and outside computer organizations and hackers.

Criminal background: June 12th 1999 was recruited to monitor and diagnose a top leading federal securities bank in New York, where he was suspected and tried on four accounts of federal grand theft, consisting of over 650 million dollars in nonnegotiable securities bonds, where he pleaded guilty to a lesser charge. Served three years in prison where he obtained many connections and respect in the criminal underground sector, due to some very reliable financial recommendations to the Black Lotus criminal organization, and later released on a technicality with help from the Agency.

Has actively progressed in both tactical and defensive exercises within the Agency and shows a great interest in electronics and computers. Seems to always be thinking, which is why he appears to always be one step ahead of any adversary. The Agency does not yet fully trust him at this time.
