BACKGROUND INFO:

Grew up in South Africa with Socialite parents. Always interested in the outdoors and kept busy exploring the jungle while her parents kept busy schmoozing the upper echelon of Johannesburg society. After graduating high school, she moved to Seattle to live with her uncle while attending graduate school. She graduated with a Masters in History and Literature and continued her passion for adventure back in the African jungle as a free-lance tour guide for those looking for adventure outside the usual tourist attractions. She was recruited by the Agency only a year ago after one of her clients recognized her special tracking abilities, extreme intellect, and ability to think on her feet.

She has been involved with several illegal "tours" for very wealthy clients looking to cash in on the business of endangered species or the ivory elephant tusks. She has managed to make a very good living from these special tours and could live quite comfortably if needed be. Her parents are unaware of her side business and only know her to be somewhat of a renegade loner who's never in one place for very long.
