BACKGROUND INFO:

Samuel Stenner graduated from the New Mexico Police Academy in 1978, shortly after meeting his first wife, Maryann Rhodes. They had one son, George, soon after that. Divorced in 1981, when he became obsessed about his work on the police force while tracking the elusive Blood Drop Killer that traveled through New Mexico.

Relations between his ex-wife and son are rocky, at best. He has continued his studies in the occult, garnering many medals of honor while breaking up cults across the southwest United States.

Agency operatives approached him in 1994 to spearhead their anti-cult force. He gladly accepted, upset by the limitations imposed by the Constitution. Within the Agency, he was more easily able to sidestep personal freedoms to get the evidence he needed to stop otherwise untouchable cult leaders.

Has received many death threats from various cults across the country.
