BACKGROUND INFO:

Anna Yuarez is an immigrant from Mexico to the United States. She has done whatever it takes to help keep her family from living on the street. She is a kind soul that has been hardened over the years by the streets. She and her brother, Juan Yuarez joined a Latino street gang in Texas soon after her family arrived. Her father, an illegal immigrant for many years, married an American woman to pave the way for his family to come from Mexico.

Anna developed a hatred for authority early on as her brother was gunned down by the police when men tried to rob the store he was in. The cops arrived and shot Juan, believing him to be part of the group robbing the store. Those four police officers were later hunted down and killed by a sharp blade to the back of the skull. Anna was questioned, but released because of a lack of evidence.

Shiv, as Anna has come to be called by her gang family and Agency coworkers alike, was recruited for her amazing agility and penchant for getting into places no one has been before. She enjoys urban exploring, a dangerous hobby where the object is to sneak into lost secret places in the bowels of a city that time has forgotten.

Shiv has turned her attention from blades, her most familiar weapon when she ran in the gang, to flamethrowers. She custom-made a small flamethrower that can be concealed within her black bodysuit. She also practices safe-cracking religiously, always looking for the next challenge.
