BACKGROUND INFO:

Born in Sacramento, CA, Andrea always knew she was ment to be in front of the cameras. Every school play, debate or club, she was the center of attention. She thrived on it and her parents encouraged it. In great physical and mental shape from her over scheduled lifestyle and a sister with a mind for business, both jumped into the production of the video fitness world. Andrea's energy and charisma caught the attention of Assistant Pit Crew Chief Andy Kangas. They hit it off immediately, accepting that their work would separate them from time to time.

Andrea took up a short residence in Lanai, Hawaii to prepare for her next fitness video. There, she became well schooled in Kajukenbo and was asked to participate in a televised demonstration, bringing more attention to the island and it's native history. She more than agreed and was paired up with a novice student, Sheila.

Dances and mock battles, filled with brilliant color and music filled the show. It all went as planned, the Hawaiian sun glinting off swords as they cleaved off one another. Both disarmed, Sheila and Andrea were in mid-fight. As Andrea's right forearm and elbow locked around Sheila's neck, Sheila was to roll right as Andrea twisted her own body in the same direction. Sheila rolled left instead as Andrea finished her move. As Sheila's body fell limply to the ground, a scream let out from the on looking audience. The cameras went black a moment later.

No charges were brought against Andrea. There had been a precautionary form signed by all participants of the event, do to the nature of the show, only ones self is at fault for sprains, broken limbs, dislocations and death/dismemberment. Broadcast across the globe, Andrea's career was over, only to be remembered as the instructor that broke a students neck on live TV.

Interested in her abilities and enthusiasm to get out there and make a name for herself again, the Agency, knowing full well her face can and will be recognized by the greater public, has taken her in, hoping on just that.
