BACKGROUND INFO:

Born in Munich, ND and an only child, John was homeschooled his entire life by his mother Jean, a part time floral designer, and his father Jayne, a plumber. At age six, after the family bought a computer for Christmas, John's learning ability accelerated dramatically. John spent hours on end learning the inner workings of the programs and mechanics that came with this new gift. He took over his homeschooling at age nine, his mother no longer able to keep up with him mentally.

As a preteen, his father insisted he go out and play with the other kids; to be more social. John refused, insisting he just had to figure out one last thing or write one more piece of code. There was nothing out there he needed. John's mother died in a car accident on his 14th birthday. Other than his Father's friends from work that had come over to the house over the years, this was the first time he was truly forced into interacting with people. All those people together made John uncomfortable. He retreated back into his comfort zone of Snickers Bars and watching old MST3K videos from the mid nineties.

John, now 19, has been forced out into the world by his father with a recommendation for occupation within The Agency. John has reluctantly agreed to his Father's wishes.

Note: Jayne Douh has done contract building work for several of the Agency's outside contacts for many years now.
