MISSION BRIEFING:

Shoji Gato, Agent Santoku, is missing. Agent Santoku's last assignment was to shadow a pilot, Hideo Iwasaki, formerly working for the Hikoratachi Corporation who disappeared shortly after Shouling Hikoratachi's death. Hideo Iwasaki appeared on the Agency grid three weeks ago and Agent Santoku was assigned to follow him and discover what, if anything, Iwasaki has been doing in the past few months. All communications with Agent Santoku was routine up through his last transmission from here in Osaka four days ago, where he indicated he believed Iwasaki was about to go to "Site B". Agent Santoku is 72 hours overdue and The Agency believes he is in trouble. Your mission is to conduct a search and rescue operation for Agent Santoku. You will travel to Santoku's last known location, a bar called Karaoke Dojo Wing, which opens in 90 minutes, and look for a contact of Santoku's named Haruko Masahito. Your objective is to locate Agent Santoku and if possible assist him in his surveillance mission of Hideo Iwasaki, uncovering the location and purpose of Site B. Due to the unusually high number of surveillance cameras in Osaka, and in order to be sensitive to the unique cultural mores in Japan, your presence must be a low-profile and you must not be observed carrying firearms of any type.

MISSION DEBRIEFING:

Mission ended at 12:30 am Osaka local time 24 October. Agents received briefing in new Osaka office, weapons restriction in-place due to the high-surveillance nature of metropolitan Japan. Agents traveled to location of agent Santoku's last known contact, a karaoke box in Osaka's upscale Umeda district. While several agents waited outside agents Scarab, Freefall and Bonzai went inside and searched for Santoku's last contact. As agents outside bluffed their way past patrolling police and ordered pizza the inside agents determined the location of their contact and made contact. The contact, unaware of Santoku's Agency identity, required much interaction before sharing his information - including agent Freefall performing a karaoke rendition of Frank Sinatra's New York New York. Agent Freefall was successful enough in his performance that the contact provided the agents with the location where he believed Santoku and his contact Hideo Iwasaki could be found, a biker bar on the Osaka waterfront. Agent Tourniquet attempted to infiltrate the bar by poisoning the bouncer; the remainder of the agents infiltrated bar after agent Greyhound beat the bar's most experienced street racer while performing a 180-degree bootlegger turn and executing a perfect nose-stand stunt during the races' final lap. Spotting Santoku's contact Hideo Iwasaki attempting to slip out the back door during the celebration over Greyhound's victory the team chased the contact to an alley where the agents were attacked by a group of biker thugs. Hideo Iwasaki was killed during the fight, but on his person the agents found an encrypted storage device containing video of the assassination of Agent Santoku and a cryptic reference to Site B. Other agents will be investigating this possible lead.
