MISSION BRIEFING:

Dr. Jozef Krivosova is one of the Czechoslovakian leading scientists in the field of rare mutating viral disease research. Agency resources have pinpointed the Prague government facility he was working in to be near Prague Castle, somewhere near the intersection of Keplerova and Jeleni Street. This new research project involved a new highly contagious viral combination of streptococcus and influenza, which after contamination and an incubation period of forty-eight hours was deemed incurable and would result in immediate death to anyone infected by it. This new virus strain was named "Perun's Bolt" after Perun, the highest god of the pantheon and the god of thunder and lightning in Slavic mythology. As of yesterday, Dr. Krivosova has been reported missing along with all of his research data and viral samples. The authorities have questioned his daughter, Anna Krivosova, but to no avail. Your mission is to find Dr. Krivosova and any of his research data and bring them both back with you, along with any information on who was responsible for his disappearance. The Czech Republic government may not be fully trusted during your stay in Prague, so a word of precaution is advised. Rendezvous with your contact at the designated time and place for further details.

MISSION DEBRIEFING:

Mission completed 1:15 am on 04/25/2006. A safe house was set up ahead of time for added mission support as Agents flew to Prague, Czech Republic and rendezvoused with contact. Agents questioned Anna Krivosova for extra Intel before proceeding to penetrate the Prague testing facility. Agents accessed the Czech Republic government computer system, where they extracted testing facility identity files. After restraining two testing facility individuals, where lethal force of poison and repeated stun gun use were deemed necessary to subdue one of them, which ultimately led to her unfortunate death, and an Agent request of a cleaner to be sent in, the Agents assumed the identities and infiltrated the testing facility. Agents were later forced into a risky multiple vehicular chase with Czech Republic police. The Agents eluded authorities after careening through the streets of Prague, and with the use of a flatcar trailer as a ramp, launched their vehicle 200 feet off the Charles Bridge, crashing onto a boat pier and obtained a ski-boat to escape authorities again via the Vltava River. Agents received mission update of Vladimir Rastikof's ransom demand and proceeded directly to the Baltchug Kempinski hotel in Moscow, Russia. Agents devised and executed a plan of hacking into the hotel computer system, gaining control of all video surveillance, electronic door locks and phone lines and infiltrating the penthouse suite of Vladimir Rastikof. Agents quietly subdued 3 bodyguards before the situation erupting into a fierce gun battle in which 3 other bodyguards were slain along with the violently slashed and severed body of Vladimir Rastikof. Dr. Krivosova, the "Perun's Bolt" virus and data were safely returned to the Agency.
