

MISSION: Double HELIX

AGENTS ASSIGNED:

Status: Closed

Raven

Vic

DATE: 10/20/2007

Frosty

Stavros

TIME: 7:15:00 PM

Hound

Shadowfox

CONTACT INFORMATION:

FIRST NAME: Hutomo

LAST NAME: Soedarjo

DATE: 10/20/2007

TIME: 8:00:00 PM

PLACE: Kusuma Airport - Jakarta, Indonesia

MISSION BRIEFING:

The HELIX Research Facility, located off the coast of New Zealand, has been conducting privately funded experiments in the process of infusing lithium with xenon in hopes of establishing a new non-fossil fuel renewable energy source since 2003. Three hours ago, a distress call from Dr. Peter Wailen came through over a secure channel requesting immediate assistance, which was unfortunately cut short before he could explain the situation. A schematic of the HELIX Research Facility is on file in the Agency database for your team's analysis. Dr. Wailen and his research are deemed indispensable and cannot fall into the wrong hands, which is why the Agency is sending in two teams.

ALPHA team - Your mission is to infiltrate the research facility by way of the Aurora Oil Drilling Rig, which is stationed off the coast of New Zealand, and is suspected to house an elevator transport straight down to the facility. Your team will be skydiving down to the oil-drilling rig under the cover of night, eliminating any resistance. Once your team has penetrated the facility's interior, rally with BETA team to recover any facility staff and HELIX research material that could be deemed significantly invaluable. Rendezvous with your contact at the designated time and place for aerial transport to your target.

MISSION DEBRIEFING:

Mission completed 10:27 am on 10-21-07. ALPHA Team skydived onto the Aurora Oil Drilling Rig and engaged in a massive fire fight, finally laying waste to all those who opposed them, climbed down to the platform and made their way into the Control Room. After uncovering a enormous blood pool, and some chopped up security cards, they rappelled down the elevator shaft and made their way into the facility. Agents rendezvoused inside the facility, securing key locations while assessing the amazing brutality dealt to HELIX personnel within. After collecting multiple magnetic key cards and an employee security list, they proceeded to make their way through the Lithium portion of the facility. Agents engaged in fierce combat with a small patrol squad and later had to fight their way through a strategic bottleneck in the R&D Testing Lab A where Dr. Peter Wailen was mercilessly executed. After a brief recount of events from some facility hostages, the team uncovered the secret to the correct Lithium Xenon process file name and proceeded to the Power Generator to turn the power back onto the facility and Virtual Reality Particle Chamber. A ferocious firefight ensued within the Power Generator room where Agents eliminated all assault squad members along with receiving a casualty of their own in the death of Agent Jackknife. Agents proceeded back to the VR Particle Chamber, ran the correct Lithium Xenon program, engaged in a brutal hand-to-hand combat in the Lithium Xenon Reaction Chamber and obtained critical security clearance cards before retrieving the "Second Genesis" program from the Data Storage Center via a 200 GB portable drive. Agents advanced to the Fuel Cell Testing Lab where they encountered a very psychotic Richard Kramer who committed suicide, but not before destroying the fuel cell testing computer that the Agents needed to use. Terrifyingly, the HELIX Research Facility five-minute warning alarm began sounding due to a potential breach in the reaction chamber. The team started to evacuate while a couple of Agents crawled their way up into the Environmental Control Center to try and mechanically fix the cooling system dilemma, where Agent Scorch discovered the problem and repaired the system with only one second to spare, saving the facility and neighboring countries from massive destruction.

MISSION: Double HELIX

AGENTS ASSIGNED:

Status: Closed

Kestral

WhiteWolf

DATE: 10/20/2007

Jacknife

Scorch

TIME: 7:15:00 PM

Pegasus

Seaweed

CONTACT INFORMATION:

FIRST NAME: Hutomo

LAST NAME: Soedarjo

DATE: 10/20/2007

TIME: 8:00:00 PM

PLACE: Kusuma Airport - Jakarta, Indonesia

MISSION BRIEFING:

The HELIX Research Facility, located off the coast of New Zealand, has been conducting privately funded experiments in the process of infusing lithium with xenon in hopes of establishing a new non-fossil fuel renewable energy source since 2003. Three hours ago, a distress call from Dr. Peter Wailen came through over a secure channel requesting immediate assistance, which was unfortunately cut short before he could explain the situation. A schematic of the HELIX Research Facility is on file in the Agency database for your team's analysis. Dr. Wailen and his research are deemed indispensable and cannot fall into the wrong hands, which is why the Agency is sending in two teams.

BETA team - Your mission is to infiltrate the research facility by way of the Waitomo Caves, located near the New Zealand coast, where an emergency exit to the research facility resides. Your team will be skydiving down to The Lost World cave entrance under the cover of night, rappel 300' down and locate the emergency exit. Once your team has penetrated the facility's interior, rally with ALPHA team to recover any facility staff and HELIX research material that could be deemed significantly invaluable. Rendezvous with your contact at the designated time and place for aerial transport to your target.

MISSION DEBRIEFING:

Mission completed 10:27 am on 10-21-07. BETA Team skydived near The Lost Word cave entrance and rappelled 300' down where they engaged in combat with a small patrol squad. Agents finally made their way through the Waitomo Cave system and to the Mangapu Submergence where they proceeded to swim underwater 450' to the facility's Emergency Ladder Access and made their way into the facility. Agents rendezvoused inside the facility, securing key locations while assessing the amazing brutality dealt to HELIX personnel within. After collecting multiple magnetic key cards and an employee security list, they proceeded to make their way through the Lithium portion of the facility. Agents engaged in fierce combat with a small patrol squad and later had to fight their way through a strategic bottleneck in the R&D Testing Lab A where Dr. Peter Wailen was mercilessly executed. After a brief recount of events from some facility hostages, the team uncovered the secret to the correct Lithium Xenon process file name and proceeded to the Power Generator to turn the power back onto the facility and Virtual Reality Particle Chamber. A ferocious firefight ensued within the Power Generator room where Agents eliminated all assault squad members along with receiving a casualty of their own in the death of Agent Jackknife. Agents proceeded back to the VR Particle Chamber, ran the correct Lithium Xenon program, engaged in a brutal hand-to-hand combat in the Lithium Xenon Reaction Chamber and obtained critical security clearance cards before retrieving the "Second Genesis" program from the Data Storage Center via a 200 GB portable drive. Agents advanced to the Fuel Cell Testing Lab where they encountered a very psychotic Richard Kramer who committed suicide, but not before destroying the fuel cell testing computer that the Agents needed to use. Terrifyingly, the HELIX Research Facility five-minute warning alarm began sounding due to a potential breach in the reaction chamber. The team started to evacuate while a couple of Agents crawled their way up into the Environmental Control Center to try and mechanically fix the cooling system dilemma, where Agent Scorch discovered the problem and repaired the system with only one second to spare, saving the facility and neighboring countries from massive destruction.