MISSION BRIEFING:

Nitrous, an Agency transporter, was assaulted by a local street gang in San Diego shortly after crossing the border. His car, a 2007 Ford Mustang GT Shelby, was stolen along with an important package he was smuggling inside a secret compartment. The package needs retrieval, and we cannot wait for him. Fortunately there is an active transponder in the car still transmitting a GPS coordinate. Since the transponder would not work if removed, The Agency is fairly certain the car is intact and the thugs who took the car are not aware of the package hidden inside. The signal locks to a warehouse in a rural area on the outer edge of San Diego County, more than likely a storage warehouse or a scrap-shop. Your mission is to travel to San Diego and retrieve the package before the car is moved to another location, or the vehicle is chopped for parts. The Agency believes any gunfire or bloodshed would be written off as inter-gang warfare by police, so the casualty restriction has been lifted. This is not a free kill license, but you may defend the package as necessary. A final warning: The package contains extremely sensitive materials, so under no circumstances are you to open the package or in any way disrupt the contents. Your flight leaves in 30 minutes. Good luck.

MISSION DEBRIEFING:

Mission Completed: 1/20/07 8:00PM

Team received order and began tactical analysis en route to San Diego. Once on the ground, the team moved quickly to the transponder-indicated coordinates, and established a concealed perimeter. One Agent attempted a quick infiltration, but was unsuccessful in her efforts. However, reconnaissance gained from the attempt proved important when the team launched a direct assault on the warehouse under the cover of darkness. Using a reinforced tactical vehicle, the team breached the main dock door into the warehouse and showed excellent control of force when dealing with the occupants, some of who were innocent mechanics. Three gang members present were killed, but agents were defending themselves when lethal force was used. Target vehicle received only minor damage to its right-side wheels, and a shot out rear passenger window. Agents made quick escape, and avoided detection of local authorities. Package safely delivered to Agency R & D holding facility in Los Angeles.
