MISSION BRIEFING:

The Agency has just received word that late last night Cardinal Tobias Vendichi, one of the highest-ranking cardinals in the Catholic Church and a former political religious informant to the Agency, was found dead in his home hung from a makeshift hangman's noose made out of white bed sheets. Nothing has surfaced as to the reason or cause behind his apparent suicide. There was no suicide note found or any witness to his death. Authorities are not ruling out foul play as a possible motive after finding a letter mailed to father Tobias two days earlier from an organization known as "The Angels of Light". After receiving a copy of the letter, which has been sent to the Agency's Cryptology Department, the Agency is led to believe that father Tobias's death is somehow tied into some larger religious plot against the Catholic Church, but to what extent is unknown. Your mission is to investigate the death of father Tobias along with uncovering any information pertaining to a suspected plot by "The Angels of Light". A copy of the letter will be provided to your team for further analysis. Any information from the Cryptology Department after a completed analysis will be sent to your team without delay. Rendezvous with your contact at the designated time and place for further details.

MISSION DEBRIEFING:

Mission completed 02/18/07. Agents arrived in Naples and met with contact. Proceeded to conduct a forensics analysis of Father Tobias's apartment. After shrewd deduction on behalf of the Agents, it was concluded that Father Tobias's death was in fact a murder by more than one assailant. After uncovering an odd phone number made to Father Tobias and a letter analysis, the Agents deciphered an encrypted code within the letter which revealed the first assault location by "The Angels of Light". Agents split up into two teams where one team went to Venice and the other to analyze the body of Father Tobias. After an analysis of the body, which revealed a stab wound under the left rib, which was covered up, and an altercation with Italian police, which was later defused by one the Agents dressed as a nun, the second team proceeded to Rome. The first team made their way to St. Marks Basilica and noticed a small timer counting down affixed to the inside of the dome. After a shootout with some cult followers inside the church and the commendation of a taxicab, in which the Agent executed a tactical backwards-vehicular collision with another vehicle igniting a chain reaction of multiple explosions destroying a Humvee TOW missile launcher, crew and numerous cult followers, Agents neutralized the first attack. Agents made their way to Florence after receiving info from Father Sepe and deciphering a second assault location. After another shootout involving cult followers in the Duomo di Florence church and the protective abduction of the Cardinal within, Agents followed a van to another missile launcher, in which a gunfight started and another massive multi-explosion erupted due to an Agent colliding his vehicle directly into the launcher using a crowbar as he bailed out of it in the nick of time. After receiving info from Father Sepe again and deciphering a third assault location, the second team made their way to St. Peters Basilica where they warned the Basilica's occupants and proceeded to a possible hotel location of a third missile launcher. After eliminating all crew and cult followers of a third missile launcher, the Agents made their way back to Naples, where Giovanni Sepe was deduced to be Father Tobias's killer. Agents failed to locate Giovanni but formulated and implemented a convincing cover-up, safeguarding the Roman Catholic Church.
