MISSION BRIEFING:

Through intercepted communications, the Agency has learned a man named Jiang Zhao has obtained documents that will expose a US collaborator in the Chinese government. Zhao is the Consulate General of the Chinese embassy in Chicago, and has these documents stored in the safe in his office. We need these documents to protect our contact. In addition, we may have a chance to discredit Zhao in the process. After obtaining the documents you will need to falsify a replacement set, then return these copies to the safe. When Zhao presents these forgeries to the Chinese Security Council, his reputation will be ruined. Zhao's meeting with the Council is on Sunday morning, giving us a small window to complete this operation. Fortunately, tomorrow night Zhao is hosting an embassy function, which is for international government officials only. The Agency has obtained two invitations for your use. The dinner is scheduled to run from 7:00 to midnight, giving you five hours to complete the task. Above all else, no suspicious activity or casualties will be allowed, as anything out of the ordinary could tip off Zhao or embassy security of the plan. Your flight leaves in one hour.

MISSION DEBRIEFING:

Mission Completed: 5-28-06 11:55 PM

Agents arrived in Chicago and established base of operations at a local hotel. Agents formulated a plan for infiltration of the Consulate posing as a diplomat and her bodyguard. The team obtained various clothing and accessories for this purpose, as well as a uniform for the Consulate's catering company. Agents contracted the use of a counterfeit team to ensure proper falsification of documents. Further assurance was provided when the counterfeit team was treated to a social gathering at the agent's hotel prior to the embassy function. Agents entered the Embassy without incident, and gained access to the office by putting a guard in a compromising position. The interior team was able to gain access to the safe without the need to override the lock, after lifting the magnetic key card from Zhao himself. After obtaining the documents the interior team left and delivered documents to the counterfeit team that was waiting in a van nearby. After their completion one agent returned to the gathering posing as a member of the catering staff. She was successful in returning the forged documents to the safe and escaping detection.
