MISSION BRIEFING:

Photo Dynamic Molecular study or PDM is fast becoming one of the top scientific and technological fields in the world, along with one of the most dangerous. The possibilities of using this new technology in the industry of manipulating metallurgy and mineral mining are endless. A science and technology convention will be taking place tomorrow afternoon at the San Jose convention center in San Jose California where an assembly of some of the most influential minds in this field will be holding a summit to discuss the possible reality of this technology. Numerous organizations around the world would like nothing more than to get their hands on this new technology either to sell the information on the black market or to use it in their own Photo Dynamic Molecular production. The Agency is led to believe that a possible attempt to steal this information will take place during the science and technology convention. Your mission is to set up a secure surveillance in and around the convention and foil any possible attempts at stealing vital information during the Photo Dynamic Molecular summit. Your presence must go unnoticed unless loss of public life is at stake. Your flight to San Jose Airport leaves in one hour. Rendezvous with your contact at the designated time and place for further details.

MISSION DEBRIEFING:

Mission completed 04/08/07. Agents arrived in San Jose, CA and set up head quarters 3 blocks from the SJCC. Agents obtained valuable inside information about the SJCC from their contact and tried duplicating an employee security badge for a possible infiltration attempt, but to no avail. Agents set up a secure surveillance in and around the convention center with major focus on the PDM summit location. No unusual events occurred the first day. On the second day, Agents again set up a secure surveillance spread throughout the convention center and centered on the PDM demo and the summit location. The entire SJCC was violently attacked by eight sub-machine gun wielding motorcyclists from the Yamaguchi-Gumi gang, who started a shootout with several La Muerte Roja gang members, only to proceed to enter the convention center with their motorcycles and unleashing a hail of bullets, killing innocent bystanders. SJCC security proceeded to return fire on all gang members. Agents rallied to the scene and neutralized the Yamaguchi-Gumi gunmen with massive unarmed attacks, crushing martial arts kicks to the head and lucky misfires from the motorcycle assassins, killing their own members. Some Agents witnessed a Fuji-Film aerial blimp, which was tethered at the convention; proceed to fly directly over the PDM summit location and drop which looked like two 500 lb iron bombs. A massive explosion erupted throughout the facility as Agents sustained some moderate damage. All information and attendees of the summit were liquidated, along with an estimated 400 civilians who were within an eighty-foot blast radius from ground zero. It was later suspected that the Hikoratachi Corporation was behind the attack, but no physical proof has been ascertained.
