ORGANIZATION BACKGROUND:

Baptists number over 110 million worldwide in more than 220,000 congregations and are considered the largest world communion of evangelical Protestants with an estimated 38 million members in North America. The largest is the United Baptists Association, which resides on the eastern and southern coasts of the United States. Their influence in the United States and around the world is felt first hand with the amount of money generated from their devotions and charitable work in poverty stricken cities, states and foreign countries.

There is a wide variety of doctrine and practice among Baptists owing to divergent origins of the various Baptist movements as well as diverse influences on the Baptists over the years. Through the years, different Baptist groups have issued confessions of faith to express their peculiar doctrinal distinctions from other Christian denominations as well as other Baptists. The United Baptists Association is the leading group in reformation or change within its own structures leading towards harsh criticism from stout believers in acclimating the organization has divulged too far outside into the modern world and political arena, using it's power to influence the masses.
